

Make yourself at home in Mirren's kitchen. Magnifique!

► HELEN MIRREN is on fine form in her latest film, The Hundred-Foot Journey, which is in cinemas across London. The culinary drama showcases delicious properties, including a chateau in Tarn, south-west France, part of a development called La Durantie. On a 15-hectare estate, the belle époque-style house, right, was used as the set for the Michelin-starred French restaurant run by Madame Mallory, played by Mirren, left. Now the film crew has gone, work is under way to turn it into a residential country club and spa, with free membership for all owners of the 57 homes. The development overlook vineyards and miles of dense oak forest. Prices start at £268,300. For more information, visit durantie.com.

Homes gossip

By Amira Hashish

Got some gossip? Tweet @amiranews

Too small for all those shoes, SJP?

► SARAH JESSICA PARKER, right, has put her Greenwich Village townhouse on the market. Could it be the wardrobe is no longer big enough?

The big, stylish, five-bedroom New York property, below, which she shares with actor husband Matthew Broderick and their three children, was first put up for sale by the couple in 2012, but they ended up taking it off the market. Now they have listed it again, but dropped the asking price to £13.6 million. They splashed out just under £11.7 million for the 6,800sqft home three years ago, when the Sex and the City actress deemed the walk-in wardrobe roomy enough for her designer dresses and Manolo Blahniks. With the work of London-based Russian artist Nikolai Ishchuk currently adorning the walls, this is a chic space to suit budding Carrie Bradshaws.

Vote for Winnie and buy a flat here

► WINSTON CHURCHILL'S much-loved family home, Chartwell in Sevenoaks, was the place where he drew inspiration, from when he and wife Clementine bought the property in the Twenties until his death in 1965.

Ever a formidable presence in the Kent commuter town, the former Tory PM was pictured peering out of the Sevenoaks Constitutional Club delivering an election speech to constituents in 1950. These days, the club houses five luxury apartments by Vine Projects.

A two-bedroom flat in the block, below, is for sale with Hamptons International at £499,950. It has a triple-aspect living room flooded with light, and the all-important gym.

See homesandproperty.co.uk/seven

Bond star's £5m rumoured mill

► DANIEL CRAIG and wife Rachel Weisz, right, were thought to be keen to buy a former mill in Warwickshire. Word got out after the owner of Blackdown Mill allegedly said an A-lister's agent had approached him. The 18th-century house was being rented out for more than £800 a week but the owner would reportedly sell for £5 million-plus. Craig's agent denies the Bond actor will be buying the place but if the film star couple have set their hearts on a mill, Seaton Mill in Lincolnshire is a conversion to an immaculate family home, on for £1.95 million with Humberts.

See homesandproperty.co.uk/Seaton

Move on, Move in, Move up.

This Autumn, whether you're looking to buy, sell, rent or let, talk to Savills and make the most of the opportunities available.

savills.co.uk

savills